Subject: Column groupings not carried over in template

Hello Thomas,

I am trying out the Column Group functionality to help manage the large number of columns in my dataset. I think it will work nicely! But when I tried to apply the .dwar file with column groups as a template to another file, they don't carry over. Is there anything special I need to do for this?

I'll sneak in a small feature request here too. Is there any chance of getting an Excel-like collapse/expand group function to quickly show or hide related columns? It works well for my team in Excel, but Excel doesn't have the column reordering flexibility that DataWarrior does, so I can understand if this would be difficult to implement.

Thanks, as always, for your continued work on this valuable tool.

Andrew
