I checked the issue and must appologize, because the capka.jar is not recognized on Windows. This only works on Linux and MacOSX. The mechanism to locate the installation directory that DataWarrior uses seems not reliable on Windows, e.g. because of an interference with the caching mechanism. I will change the mechanism in the upcoming update. If you like and if you tell me which OS you use (win32 or win64) I can send you a link to a 4.0 beta version with this issue solved.
