Subject: openchemlib-js

Posted by Dennis on Wed, 02 May 2018 06:06:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The source code of Datawarrior shows that Thomas Sander wrote (almost) the entire program. Thanks for that, it's a very nice piece of work.

On 'github.com/Actelion/openchemlib' a part of the source code of datawarrior is hosted and on github.com/cheminfo/openchemlib-js', this is converted into javascript. Could you tell me how all is correlated and how Datawarrior is part of this?