I want to increase the width of the row containing the column headings, so as to show its full contents. Any idea or workaround?

Thanks

the next public version will have a button that expands (and un-expand) all column widths such that their names are fully readable. Currently, you need to change column widths one by one with the mouse.

Sorry Thomas..I wrongly wrote width in my query..
Actually its the height of the column headings which i want to increase to show all its contents. one way is to increase the width of the columns as you mentioned in your reply. But can we increase or change the height of the row containing the column headers as we can do for rest of the rows.

Thanks

No, you can't. But you are not alone with this request. I see what I can do...
