Hello,

I am very new to DataWarrior and have a very basic question. I'm trying to create a new form and followed the instructions in the DataWarrior User Manual:

==========
To create a new Form View right-click within the header area of any existing view and choose New Form View from the popup menu. This action creates a new Form View with a default layout containing form items for every available column or detail information.
==========

I assume "any existing view" refers to the different views displayed in the "Main View Area". When I right-click in the header area, the "New Form View" option is not listed in the popup menu. Can someone help me how to create a new form?

Thank you.

For the sake of clarity the formerly hidden popup menu options on the blue header line used to appear with a right mouse click were moved into popup menus that appear when pressing visible buttons. In this case you need to press the '+' button (with a left mouse click) and select 'New Form View' from the popup menu.
